What stronger pleasure is there with mankind, or what do they earlier learn, or longer retain, than the love of hearing and relating things that are so wonderful a thing is the love of wondering and of relating wonders! 'Tis the delight of children to hear tales that they shiver at, and the vice of old age to abound in strange stories of time past. We come into the world wondering at everything; and when our wonder at common things is over, we seek something new to wonder at. Our last scene is to tell wonders to our own ears, and to all who will believe them. And amidst all this 'tis well if Truth comes off but moderately untried. Shaftsbury's book is a classic reprint of a work by William Jones. (Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and don't occur in the book.)
