Georgie B. Goode hadn't realized that she was ready to rebel—not until she uttered a very decisive “NO” and had the rest of her family staring at her in shock. Her father, founder of the enormous Johnny B. Goode RV Empire, couldn't believe it. What was going on with his daughter? Every year until now she had done what he asked: picked out a late-model motorhome for herself ready to showcase it at his giant RV Expo.

A late-model motorhome just doesn't do it for Georgie. Her first love is the tiny vintage trailer division of her father's empire...but he and her brother Jerry think she's crazy wanting to build it up. They deliberately don't make it easy for Georgie.

She takes to the road to prove she can live and travel in a vintage gypsy trailer, and meet her father's outrageous sales targets as well. What she doesn't count on is her great-grandmother Rosa's determination that she should carry on the family gypsy tradition of fortune-telling on the road.

What with brother Jerry's conniving tricks, her father's unreasonable demands, and dozens of people flocking to her vintage trailer to have their fortunes told... Georgie really does wonder if she's bitten off more than she can chew. And somehow, she has to figure out what the crystal ball is trying to tell her before Kaylene hooks up with a guy who is oh so wrong for her!
